SUBMISSIONS CRITERIA:

AAS faculty and students are invited to write articles and essays about contemporary issues related to African Americans. The idea is to underscore the interconnectedness of African American history and present day realities.

Articles submitted for posting on the AAS website should adhere to the following criteria:

1: Currency: Topics should be tied to historic anniversaries or contemporary events and issues.

2: Construction: Articles should be thoughtful and scholarly, but accessible to readers beyond the academy who might happen to browse our site.

3: Concise: Articles should be restricted to 1,500-2,000 words;

4: If previously published: Articles that have previously appeared in other publications are acceptable if published in the current calendar year.

Submit all articles to:
Prof. Nathan McCall
Email: nmccall@emory.edu or natemac199@gmail.com.
Ph: (404) 727-4760

The author must include her/his email and telephone contact information. Please note that submission of an article does not guarantee that it will be posted. The Department of African American studies reserves the right to withhold articles deemed inappropriate, untimely or inconsistent with the criteria established for the site.